

Gastronomy

Hundreds of kinds of fish and shellfish recently extracted from the sea, excellent meat, tender vegetables, fresh cheese, renowned wines and liqueurs... the city's gastronomy is undoubtedly one of its main attractions.

For all tastes... and all budgets

In Santiago there is an extensive range of establishments where you can sample the excellent Galician cuisine: from select restaurants to charming "casas de comidas" and "mesones" and tempting seafood restaurants, passing through "in" establishments where the chefs of new Galician cuisine are setting the trend. There are also typical "parrilladas" (grillrooms) and "churrasquerías" (steakhouses), and the ever-popular "jamonerías", "vinotecas", "bodegas" and "tabernas" that serve "tapas" (small snacks, often succulent, that are free in most establishments), "raciones" (portions for sharing an informal meal), "pinchos" (a smaller quantity of the aforementioned, at a lower price) and "tablas" (boards of cold meats, cheeses or pâtés).

Naturally, the city features a good representation of all the regional cuisines (Basque, Catalan, Mediterranean, etc) that make up the large family of Spanish gastronomy, in addition to vegetarian cooking and the world's main culinary traditions: Italian, Greek, Japanese, Chinese, Turkish, Brazilian...

The fact that Santiago is a university city also guarantees a large range of set menus at reasonable prices, in numerous establishments throughout the city.
